Bourbon Employers Oppose Fair Labor Standards Act

The twenty-eight-point program adopted by the National Convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in Washington, D. C., last week, is a direct challenge to the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 as a major step toward the business recovery.

In view of the fact that the Chamber of Commerce professes to speak for American industry, it is interesting to note just what the Fair Labor Standards Act does.

It establishes a reduction in normal hours of work of twenty-five cents an hour for the first year for all workers engaged in interstate commerce. This minimum is to be raised to thirty cents an hour in the second year, and to forty cents in the third year.

The law also establishes a universal ceiling for hours of work. It provides for a ten-hour day for all workers in manufacturing and mining. In other industries, a ten-hour day and a ten-hour week thereafter, with time and a half for overtime for work in excess of ten hours.

The Act also bans child labor. It absolutely prohibits the employment of children under 16 years of age in manufacturing and mining. In other industries, employment of children between the ages of 14 and 16 may be permitted, but only to the extent authorized by the Chief of the Children's Bureau who is required to make sure that work will not interfere with the children's schooling or impair their health. In occupations deemed to be hazardous by the Chief of the Children's Bureau, no employment is permitted.

Thus the Fair Labor Standards Act establishes a bottom limit for wages, provides a top limit for weekly hours, and eliminates child labor by Federal action.

The Fair Labor Standards Act went into effect on October 24, 1938. At that time employers sought to get out of the Act by paying over 200,000 workers less than twenty-five cents an hour. Since October 24 practically all of these workers have had their wages increased to the twenty-five-cent minimum required by the Act. The employers' attempt to get out of the Act by paying less than twenty-five cents an hour when the second year under the Act begins next October.

The minimum wage standards imposed by the Fair Labor Standards Act are not high. The shortest work week required is 40 hours.

It is, therefore, extremely regrettable that the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, composed of those who profess to represent American industry and commerce, should be perpetrating such a gross violation of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 should be repeated and thousands of working men and women, and even children, be subjected to the indignities which extend from time before the Act became effective.

Another New Republic Lie

The halfhearted intelligentsia who edit the New Republic, self-styled "journal of opinion," in the Act were saying over 200,000 workers critics of the American Federation of Labor and its officers, are likewise among the most ardent supporters of the C. I. O. who have since the passage of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 should be repeated and thousands of working men and women, and even children, be subjected to the indignities which extend from time before the Act became effective.

On April 30, the daily press published a statement made by John Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in which he stated that the amendments proposed by the American Federation of Labor to the National Labor Relations Act were "proposed by the American Federation of Labor to the National Labor Relations Act."

Lewis's statement was in the form of a letter addressed to the chairman of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, which was holding hearings on amendments to the National Labor Relations Act. Lewis's statement was in the form of a letter addressed to the chairman of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, which was holding hearings on amendments to the National Labor Relations Act.

But perhaps there is a reason for the New Republic's mad crusade against the American Federation of Labor. It is the fact that the New Republic is a thoroughly unprincipled and dishonest publication. It is a thoroughly unprincipled and dishonest publication. It is a thoroughly unprincipled and dishonest publication.

Democracy Gains Through Motion Pictures

Is the fight for democracy labor is making on many fronts, it is encouraging to discover a new and powerful ally. Convention of A. F. of L. Textile Workers Union Meets in Washington

Gorman Visits Practically All of the Old Locals of the United Textile Workers Returning to Parent Organization.

By A. F. of L. Weekly News Service.
Washington, D. C., May 12.—Two hundred delegates from local representing every branch of the textile industry and every geographical section of the nation are expected to attend the special convention of the United Textile Workers of America, A. F. of L. affiliate, which opened here today at the Hamilton Hotel. J. Gorman, president of the U. W. A., announced.

The main issue for discussion and action will be the mapping of a program of rapid reversion of the former United Textile Workers to their old charters, and the formation of plans for an extensive organizing drive to bring in the hundreds of thousands of textile workers who have been disorganized.

"Many important sections of the textile industry are in the process of being reorganized," Gorman declared, "and the reversion and re-organizing of the United Textile Workers is imperative."

A survey by the American Federation of Labor shows that in the North and the South there are more textile workers today than there were five years ago. The TWOC was formed.

"As a case in point, we cite the State of Connecticut, where, before the formation of the TWOC, there were 25 local unions and where today only one, and no knowledge, is in existence."

"We expect, however, to bring 50 per cent of the old locals back into the United Textile Workers when our re-organizing drive is completed. The re-organizing drive is being completed for the reorganization and rechartering of old unions."

Green Will Present Charter. Gorman stated that the American Federation of Labor is now undergoing the process of reorganization and reversion of the old U. W. A. charters.

Tells Railway Clerks Convention, Communists Seek to Control Organized Labor in Both Canada and the United States.

Toronto, Canada. (APLWS)—The American Federation of Labor is doing everything in its power to bring about peace in the labor movement. William Green, president of the A. F. of L., told 650 delegates to the annual convention of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks in Toronto today.

He said that conferences between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations have been temporarily suspended because the communists in the United Mine Workers, C. I. O. affiliate, with the coal operators, had the structure we have built at a heavy cost. "Without going into statistics, it is a matter of record that the growers and workers in California have lost many billions of dollars worth of business as a result of the economic depression and the hazards to floor and grain, cereal, sugar, rubber, glass, iron, steel and chemical products, and the food, machinery, automobiles and an endless list of other products.

A. F. of L. Seeks More Liberal Rules For Admitting Lawyers to Gov't Service

By A. F. of L. Weekly News Service.
Washington, D. C.—The American Federation of Government Employees, affiliated with the A. F. of L., is enthusiastically backing the bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas (R., 161st), which would permit the government to employ graduates of night law schools and to employ lawyers who may have had no formal training.

In explaining the bill, the A. F. of L. said:

"There has been in recent years a steadily increased movement to increase the educational requirements for admission to the bar, and what is perhaps considerably more important, as far as the Government service is concerned, certain agencies are disposed to require appointments to legal positions on the basis of approved law schools."

Representatives of many law schools, legal federations and other associations, appeared before a subcommittee headed by the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, to urge the passage of the bill.

President Charles I. Stingle of the American Federation of Government Employees was among the witnesses. He contended that restrictions on the appointments of graduates of night law schools in the Government service run counter to the spirit of the Government's executive orders for a career service.

Dr. John R. Fitzpatrick of Case Western Reserve University presented evidence of the bill from various representatives of the American Federation of Government Employees.

standing in place of a parent, in any occupation. There is nothing in the law which prohibits a parent from traveling in a car. They don't and in a blind alley. They are straight to the point. Nevertheless, the plain language of the law and the high moral principle of the law are not to be tampered with. The law is not to be tampered with and it continues their nefarious calling of obtaining children from the hands of industry.

The existence of employers of this subversive type has been revealed in the West Virginia case. The law is not to be tampered with and it continues their nefarious calling of obtaining children from the hands of industry.

The injunction was secured by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor. The law is not to be tampered with and it continues their nefarious calling of obtaining children from the hands of industry.

The Children's Bureau stated that the injunction proceedings were instituted after a warning to the corporation against employment of children under 16 years in the plant. But the corporation officials refused to heed the warning. And as the result the Federal Court assumed them square in the face with an injunction restraining them from continued violation of the child labor provisions. Violation of the injunction would result in heavy financial penalties in contempt of court proceedings.
